UEFA takes your privacy seriously. Please read the following Privacy Policy carefully to learn more about UEFA's use of your personal identifying information that UEFA collect when you visit UEFA's website at teambasecampseuro2016.uefa.ch (hereinafter referred to as: the "Website"). UEFA reserves the right to change this Privacy Policy at any time without notice to you. You are therefore responsible for regularly reviewing this Privacy Policy.

What this Privacy Policy covers

This Privacy Policy covers UEFA's treatment of personal identifying information that UEFA collects when you are on the Website and when you use services on the Website, as described in this Privacy Policy. This Privacy Policy also covers UEFA's treatment of any personal identifying information that UEFA's business partners share with UEFA unless otherwise stated.

This Privacy Policy does not apply to the practices of any companies or legal entities that UEFA does not own or control or to any persons that UEFA does not employ or manage, including without limitation third-party advertisers or sponsors to whom you provide information. UEFA is not responsible for privacy policies or practices of other websites to which you choose to link from the Website, and UEFA encourages you to review the privacy policies of those other websites so you can understand how they collect, use and share information.

Information collection and use

UEFA does not collect personal identifying information when you access the Website homepage and browse the Website without disclosing your personal data except as described in this Privacy Policy or the relevant part of the Website and except cookies (see below under "cookies").

UEFA collects personal identifying information when you register on the Website, when you use certain products or services on the Website and when you enter promotions, sweepstakes or similar services sponsored by UEFA or its business partners. UEFA may also receive personal identifying information from its business partners.

When you register, UEFA asks for your name, email address, and some other personal information. Once you register with UEFA and/or sign in to our products or services, you are not anonymous to UEFA.

In case you signing in via your Facebook authentication services (Facebook account), UEFA may receive some information from Facebook, but you remain solely responsible for your whole relationship with Facebook, including, without limitation, any content on the Facebook website.

In case you terminate your membership with Facebook and/or terminate the links between Facebook and our Website, UEFA will delete all data received from Facebook concerning you if you ask UEFA to do so. You can do so using the same easy way as for the ability to access your personal identifying information as defined in this Policy. Further, Facebook may require UEFA to delete data received from Facebook API in case of violation of their terms.

If Facebook will disable any links to our website, UEFA will delete all your data received through the use of the Facebook API, unless it is a basic account information or UEFA have received explicit consent from you to retain your data.

UEFA also automatically receives and records information on our server logs from your browser including your Internet Protocol address (IP address), which identifies your computer, UEFA's cookies information and the page you requested.

UEFA uses information collected for three general purposes: for technical administration of the Website, for research and development to achieve and maintain a high service level and for customer information (to customise the content you see, to fulfil your request for certain products and services and to contact you about specials and new products and services).

Information sharing and disclosure

UEFA will not sell or rent your personal identifying information without your consent. UEFA may send personal identifying information about you to third parties when:

- UEFA has your consent to share the information;
- UEFA needs to share your information to provide the product or service you have requested;
- UEFA needs to send the information to third parties who work on behalf of UEFA to provide a product or service to you (unless otherwise stated so, these third parties do not have any rights to use the personal identifying information UEFA provides to them beyond what is necessary to provide a product or service to you);
- UEFA responds to courts or authorities;
- UEFA finds that your actions on the Website violate UEFA Website Terms and Conditions of Use or any other UEFA's guidelines or rules applicable for specific services; or
- UEFA finds that it is necessary, as determined in UEFA's sole discretion, to investigate, prevent or take action regarding illegal activities, suspected fraud, emergency situations involving potential threats to the physical safety of any persons, violations to UEFA's terms of use or as otherwise required by law.

Cookies

UEFA may set and access UEFA's cookies on your computer. A cookie is a small amount of data, which often includes an anonymous unique identifier that is sent to your browser from a website's computer and stored on your computer's hard drive.

UEFA uses its own cookies for number of purposes, mainly to:

- access your information when you "sign in", so that we can provide you with customized content;
- keep track of preferences you specify while you are using UEFA services;
- estimate and report our total audience size and traffic;
- conduct research and development to improve the Website contents and services and achieve and maintain a high service level.

UEFA may allow third parties that are presenting promotions or researching users response to advertisement on some of our pages to set and access their own cookies on your computer. Third parties' use of their cookies is subject to their own privacy policies and not this one.

Children's privacy

UEFA does not knowingly collect personal data from children. UEFA does not take specific steps to protect the privacy of children who disclose their personal identifying information to UEFA.

Access to your personal identifying information

UEFA gives you the ability to access your personal identifying information by sending us an email including in the title of the email the reference to personal identifying information at dataprotection@uefa.ch.

UEFA allows you to challenge the data that it holds about you and you may have such data rectified, amended or completed.

Security

If you communicate with UEFA by email, you should note that the secrecy of Internet email is uncertain. By sending sensitive or confidential email messages or information which are not encrypted you accept the risk of such uncertainty and possible lack of confidentiality over the Internet. In certain areas, UEFA uses industry standard SSL encryption to protect data transmissions.

Generally, UEFA takes precautions to safeguard your personal information against loss, theft, and misuse, as well as against unauthorized access, disclosure, alteration, and destruction.

Changes in this Privacy Policy

This policy may be amended from time to time. If we amend the Privacy Policy in any way we will place an updated version on this page of the Website. Regularly reviewing this page ensures that you are always aware of what information we collect, how we use it and under what circumstances, if any, we will share it with other parties. If we make any substantial changes in the way we use your personal information we will notify you by posting an announcement on the Website.

Updating your information

You may review, correct, update or change your personal information at any time by accessing your account on teambasecampseuro2016.uefa.ch.

Privacy compliance

UEFA is subject to Swiss data protection laws when collecting and processing personal identifying information.
